This is silo filling time and the farmers who have silos are mighty busy at present. And the farmers' wives are busy, too, when the silo filling gang comes. It takes a lot of grub to fill the silo fillers.

The weeds in Baxter Springs ought to be cut. The recent rains have made them grow rank, and they look bad. Baxter is too good a town to have such unsightly weeds, and the city dads ought to have them cut.

The opening of The Baxter Supply Company, which occurred on Tuesday of this week, was largely attended. Mr. Treece, the proprietor, was well pleased with the turn-out to the opening. He tells that another shipment of new goods will arrive in a few days.

A Large Funeral.

The funeral services of the late Wm. Callis, which were held Sunday afternoon, were largely attended. Mr. Callis was one of the best citizens of Cherokee county, and every acquaintance of his was his friend.

Mr. Callis was born in England in 1840, but came to this country when a boy eight years of age. He lived in Pennsylvania, Michigan, Missouri, and finally came to Kansas in 1884, settling on a farm which he bought three miles west of Baxter Springs.

He moved into town several years ago, after work on the farm had become too hard for him.

He was a Mason and the funeral was conducted by the Masons. During the war of the rebellion Mr. Callis served three years in the navy.

He left a wife and three grown sons to mourn his death.

Took Saddle With Him.

Our old friend, J. C. Naylor, bought a Ford machine a short time ago, and took it out on the prairie to break it. And what is more, he took a saddle in the machine with him. We don't know whether he thought the Ford was a broncho that needed riding with a saddle, or what. At any rate he went out into a big meadow and tried to learn the machine. He got it started all right, but could not learn it to be bridled, so he borrowed a horse, put the saddle on it and went home. Arriving home, he told his daughter she could have the blamed car; that he did not want anything further to do with it. J. C. will no doubt deny all this, but it is a fact, just the same.

Public Sale Matters.

No where in Southeast Kansas is as nice a sale bill printed as you can get at the News office. If you doubt this, just look on the bottom of the sale bills you see, so you can tell where they are printed, and compare them with bills printed elsewhere.

And if you have your bills printed at this office, a notice of your sale is printed in this paper free of cost to you. And on account of the wide circulation of this paper, this notice is worth all the bills cost you.

Come to this office for your bills, and we will also help you arrange for your sale dates, lunch, etc.

Lost—On Main street Saturday night, a gold brooch, set with Amethyst in center. Return to this office.

It would be well for children of school age in Baxter to attend school, as the truant officer is now making the rounds.

Mrs. Jim Page and daughter, Carlene, of Galena are here visiting Mr. and Mrs. Jim Barnes.

Pays to Advertise.

J. O. Treece had his formal opening on Tuesday of this week, and among the attractions advertised was the fact that coupons goods for one dollar's worth of merchandise would be given to each of the first ten ladies entering the store after the doors opened. There was at least one hundred ladies at the doors. They began arriving early and when nine o'clock came the crowd reached into the street, and both ways from the doors. The first ten in were Mrs. D. C. Satterlee, Mrs. H. P. Dowty, Mrs. L. L. Winters, Mrs. E. Richardson, Mrs. Kember, Mrs. L. O. Gray, Miss Mattie Patton, Mrs. Sam Simmons, Mrs. Ed. Swalley, Mrs. Will Jones.

Although the crush was severe, yet there was no ill feeling, and a big crowd of men stood around, expecting to see trouble. The horrid men!

Three Barns Burned.

Last Thursday afternoon, during a high wind, fire broke out in a barn belonging to John Mansell, in the Third ward, and before anything could be done toward checking the fire it had spread across the alley to a couple of barns belonging to Mr. Satterlee. All three barns were burned. The Mansell barn was full of hay, and the Satterlee barns were full of straw. It took a lot of hard work to save the Satterlee residence.

Cold, Hard Facts.

If a person points a pistol at your head and takes your money, he is a robber. If a salesman tells you wrong, and takes your money, he is a robber. If you buy without looking around and getting the most for your money, you rob yourself.

We sell cheaper for cash.
